Q & A #4 – 3/16/2022

3.2.i - What is the challenge or concern that motivates a “time tracker notification system”? What types of pages would benefit from this feature, and why? Are you open to other solutions that would address the underlying concern?
A notification system would be ideal to allow content to stay fresh and updated. Alerts would be sent to team members if a page hasn’t been touched in a certain period, such as by college terms (4x a year) as an example. Times would vary depending on the page content. We are open to other solutions. This is lower priority.

3.3.a - Is this a request for 3 design options with respect to the overall aesthetic and style? Specifically, what is the scope of this request, i.e., home page and design and secondary page?
Three design options in terms of aesthetic style and scope of what it takes to develop the design. For example, home page, secondary page and detail page.

Please explain a little about #7. Will new tools be an option they’re providing? Can they give a couple examples of how they use it now? Are they open to employing a new strategy for scheduling or reminding their staff when it’s time to updates something? Would a calendar system on the site that is private be something they could use?
This questions says #7 but appears like it is referring to the time tracker notification system. We don’t have anything that reminds our staff to make updates today. We are open to ideas. The notification system is lower priority than other features on the list.
